What is Shared Print?

Shared Print and Shared Print Programs are collaborations among libraries to distribute the responsibility for maintaining collections, allowing partner libraries to reserve valuable space for materials that aren't available electronically, or for print items that are in high demand.

Over 23 million books retained!

That's around 3,276 miles of books which would reach from Maine to California.

More Space for You!

Sharing print copies between libraries means more space in libraries for other uses like meetings and technology.

It's not just books, libraries are preserving and sharing journals and magazines too.

Over 600,000 retained!

Shared Print Creates a Collective Collection

Collective collections combine the resources of libraries, creating more content for users to explore.

Keeping the Print

In an age of digital materials, shared print programs make sure the older rarer print materials stick around.

EAST

SCHOLARS' TRUST

Brief History of EAST

- From grant-funded project to registered non-profit
- From 40 members in the Northeast to 190+ in 17 states
- From monographs to serials and journals
- From GreenGlass to Gold Rush

Some EAST Definitions:

Retention Partners: Dues paying member institutions who agree to keep and provide access to titles they were allocated to retain during their collection analysis process. Can be individual or consortia.

Supporting Partners: Dues paying member institutions who support and value the work of EAST but cannot commit to retain titles; they are represented in EAST's governance. Can be individual or consortia.

Retained/Retention Commitments: Titles libraries agree to keep and loan (or otherwise provide access to) in order to preserve the scholarly record.

Disclosure/Registration: The act of updating the records of retained titles by incorporating a "Committed to Retain" note in the MARC 583 field. This is done in the institution's ILS, in OCLC, and in PAPR (for serials/journals retentions) and facilitates discovery of shared print retentions. Marc records for retained titles are also loaded into Gold Rush which serves as an EAST Retentions Database.

SCHOLARS' TRUST

190+ members in 17 States

120+ are monograph retention partners

32 serials and journals partners, more coming on this year

Over 11 million monographs currently retained and growing

Over 37,000 serials and journals currently retained

EAST Business Model

- EAST member libraries pay an annual membership fee based on collection size at the time of joining.
- Annual membership fees support EAST's operating budget.
- In addition to the annual operating budget, EAST maintains a reserve fund.

Major Policies and Procedures

All of EAST's collection analysis and retention work is guided by the EAST Membership Agreement (MOU) which is signed by all member libraries.

Also on the eastlibraries.org website:

- General Governance Policies
- EAST Members' Rights and Responsibilities
- Major Operating Policies
 - Supplemented by documentation on replacing retention commitments for lost, missing or damaged items and Best Practices for Inter-Library Loan
 - Includes an FAQ on common questions relating to retention commitments

EAST Governance

Board of Directors

- Governing body
- Nominated by the membership through their Voting Members
- Representative by type and size of library
- Staggered three year terms
- Includes two Executive Committees:
Finance and Personnel

Operations Committee (OC)

- Charged with addressing issues relating to operationalizing EAST policies
- Nominated by the membership
- Representative by type and size of library
- Staggered two year terms

Working Groups – Ad hoc representative groups focused on specific aspects of a project – e.g. Resource Sharing Working Group.

Board of Directors

As of January 2026 the EAST Board of Directors includes:

President & Co-Chair:

Anthony Fonseca, Elms College (2026)

Vice-President, Clerk & Co-Chair:

Jonathan Miller, Williams College (2027)

Treasurer:

Boaz Nadav-Manes, Lehigh University (2026)

Directors:

Vicki Coleman, North Carolina A&T State University (2027)

Frances Maloy, Union College (2028)

Susan Myers, Spartanburg Methodist College (2028)

Josh Petrusa, Butler University (2027)

Sue Polanka, Appalachian State University (2026)

Jennifer Resor-Whicker, Radford University (2028)

EAST Strategic Framework, 2026–2031

Pillar 1: STRENGTHEN member collection building & management strategies

Pillar 2: ADVOCATE on behalf of members

Pillar 3: ENHANCE the ongoing value of membership

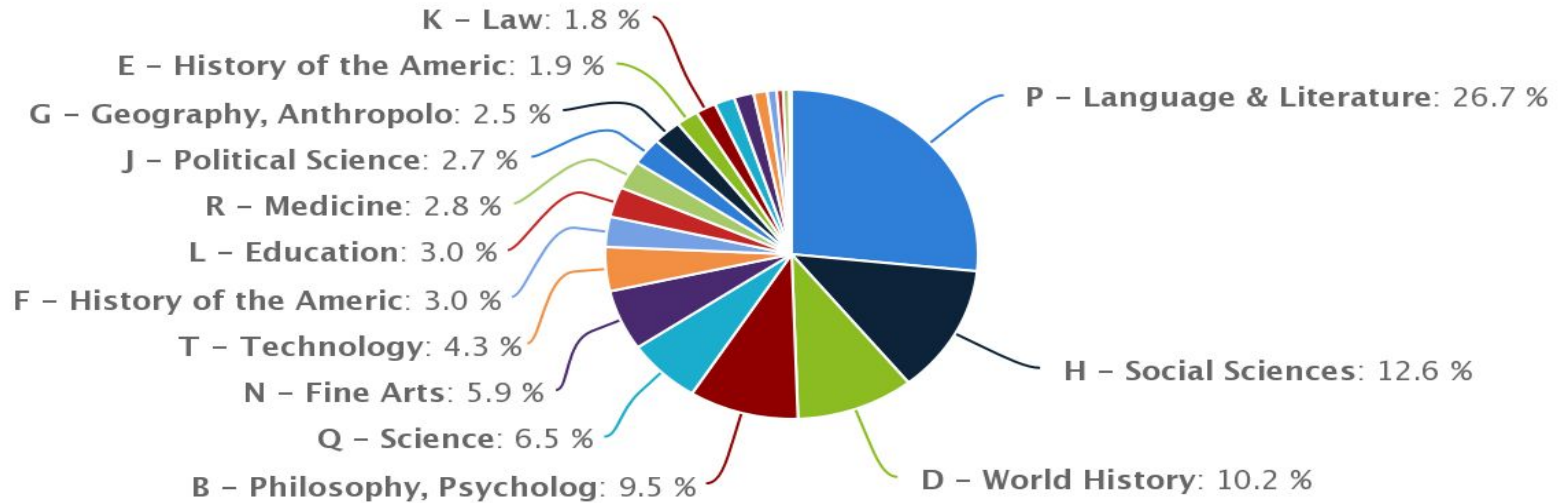

Pillar 4: COLLABORATE to improve preservation & access

Key EAST Objectives

- Secure retention commitments beyond 2031 so that members can continue to rely on the EAST collective collection
- Advocate within member institutions and with outside partners
- Continuously improve access to the EAST collective collection (i.e., resource sharing among members)
- Transparent communication with members
- Develop partnerships to enhance member services

Monograph Collection Analysis

Retention Partners joining EAST carry out a collection analysis using one of two tools: GreenGlass (from OCLC) or Gold Rush (from the Colorado Alliance of Research Libraries).

During this process, libraries with support from the EAST Program Team:

- Load their MARC records into the tools (circulating print records).
- Compare their local records to the EAST collective collection of retention commitments to determine uniqueness and overlap resulting in a retention model for the library's collection.
- Review an initial allocations list that includes the titles they are asked to retain and finalize their local retention commitments.
- Register commitments in the appropriate databases.

EAST

SCHOLARS' TRUST

The EAST Monograph Retention Model - Pre-2011 Titles

- Limited to print monograph titles published prior to 2011
- Retain all scarcely held – includes unique titles and those with limited holdings in WorldCat (if comparison with WorldCat is feasible)
- Retain additional copies of higher circulating titles (if circulation data available)
- Retain additional copies of titles published pre-1900
- Exclude out of scope material and material that meets EAST definition of “ephemera”
- As we work with newer libraries “top up” commitments to get to 5 commitments

The EAST Monograph Retention Model - Post-2011 Titles

67 EAST libraries participated in a collection analysis focussed on newer print monograph titles, those added to libraries' collections 2011-2021

- Retained unique titles
- Retained up to 5 copies of all other titles:
- Allocated commitments based on libraries' geographical region & existing commitment levels
- Excluded out of scope material and material that meets EAST definition of “ephemera”

EAST

SCHOLARS' TRUST

Serials and Journals

- Around 50 EAST members are Serials and Journals Retention Partners. Two retain serials titles only.
- The journal collection analysis was carried out 2016-2019, with the support of the Center for Research Libraries, which worked with the EAST Program Team to develop a phased methodology to identify titles held by 4-6 participating libraries, then 7-28, and lastly, titles held by 3 or fewer libraries. This work yielded ~27K retained titles.
- Subsequent participation in the Rosemont Last Known Copy Initiative have increased this number to over 37K holdings.
- Currently in the midst of a second round of S/J work with CRL

Details of this work can be found in the EAST Serials & Journals Collection Analysis and Retention Modeling 2016-2019 document.

Print Archive Network Forum (PAN)

The Center for Research Libraries fosters collaboration among library and consortia experts to share knowledge, expertise, and best practices in strategic print management. The Print Archive Network (PAN) Forum serves as a key venue for this exchange.

Held semi-annually since 2009, PAN meets on Friday mornings before ALA's annual and midwinter conferences. Anyone interested in print archiving is welcome to attend and participate.

PAN Event Lists and Materials

- The CRL Event Index^{CF} lists all PAN events since 2010, as well as any scheduled future PAN events. PowerPoint presentations and reports on various U.S. and Canadian shared print and print archive programs, produced for past PAN Forums, are also available within this index.
- The old PAN Meeting Archive^{CF} contains early discussions and materials leading up to the development of a North American print archives framework in 2010.

Reallocation Process

Twice yearly call for libraries to request reallocation of retained titles that can no longer be retained (because they are out of scope - in which case the retention is removed and not reallocated - due to loss, change in lending status, etc).

Once a year, we send out to the libraries the lists of titles that have been requested for reallocation and which are held (but not retained) at other EAST libraries.

Libraries then let us know if they can retain those new titles and update their ILS and WorldCat accordingly. These changes would also be reflected in the annual Gold Rush data update request.

From the FAQ:

What does an EAST retention commitment mean?

A retention commitment means that the retaining library is committed to retain the title and provide access through June 30, 2031.* This includes replacing the title if lost or damaged.

How do I know what monographs are retained?

Retentions are recorded in your local ILS (most likely in a MARC 583 field), Gold Rush, and OCLC's FirstSearch.

This date may be extended.*

Ask the Project Team for login information.*

The value of EAST

"EAST offers essential assurances to our faculty that we are invested in the print record and ensuring its accessibility to current and future scholars."

--Anna Gold, University Librarian, Worcester Polytechnic Institute

EAST Members can:

- Borrow materials from their EAST partners, in most cases at no cost
- Withdraw titles that their partners have committed to retain
- Participate in the governance of EAST
- Access and use EAST member training materials and documentation
- Engage in regular update webinars and the annual membership meeting
- Contribute to the protection of the print record through regional and national collaboration.
